"Current Issues in Nursing Education Practice .Workshop " was held in İzmir on March 23-24 of 2017 with aim of discussing practice / internships problems that communicated to our association with decision makers and relevant stakeholders and to create a solution search environment. The topics of legislation, financial issues, quantitative and qualitative issues related to practice, teaching staff, preceptor nurses and education nurses, practice ECTS (workload) and time and malpractice issues are discussed and suggestions are presented. It has been seen that Higher Education Institutions have interpreted the legislation differently. The introduction of internship insurance premiums for students, the payment of internship fees to students, the request of the institutions for the internship fee and procedures for the fulfillment of occupational health safety are discussed as the most important reasons that make the internship planning and execution difficult. The most important problems experienced were lack of practice area in quantity and quality that reach learning achievements due to high number of students; differences in practice responsibilities of instructors according to their academic titles; preceptor nurses' responsibilities are not clearly defined; instructors can not make practice with student due to malpractice problems. In addition, the issue of the differences in practice time and ECTS between schools, the fact that practice ECTS does not appear in education plan and diploma supplement is discussed. It has been suggested that reduction of student quotas, increasing the number and quality of teaching staff, appointment of instructors according to their competencies in internships, making teaching staff's insurance, determining the criteria for being a preceptor nurse, making definitions of internship and practice more clear, making practice protocols more carefully between universities and health care institutions.
